Harris Leaves For Agricultural Mission

President Franklin S. Harris left the campus of USAC Jan. 19 on a government agricultural mission to the middle east. He will return June 1. Dr. W. L. Wanlass, Senior Dean, is to assume the duties of President Harris in his absence.

Dr. Harris was invited by the government to head an agricultural mission of three men to the seven countries of Lebanon, Syria, Iraq, Palestine, Trans-Jordan, Saudi Arabia, and Egypt. The mission was requested by President Harry S. Truman and was arranged by the State Department and the Office of Foreign Relations of the Department of Agriculture.

The purpose of the trip is to improve relations between these countries and the United States, to assist in the organization of agricultural projects, and to assist in organization of agricultural schools, experiment stations, and extension work.

Dr. Harris flew to Washington on Jan. 19 to make preliminary plans for the trip. He then returned home and left Feb. 1 by plane for his first headquarters in Beirut, Lebanon. Supplies for the expedition were sent on by boat.

Colleagues of Dr. Harris for the expedition are Dean Robert E. Buchannon, Dean of graduate school and director of experiment station of Iowa State College at Ames Iowa, and Dr. Alif Tannous, authority on near eastern problems in the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

USAC Graduate Chosen for Singing In Hollywood Movie

Another story of "local boy makes good" became a reality recently when Jerold Shepard, '41, was one of eight singers chosen for work in the Warner Brother's production, Night and Day.

Mr. Shepard who is voice instructor at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles was selected from a group of 200 contestants for a voice role in the movie depicting the life of Cole Porter. He has been working in the music department at the Warner Brother's studio besides directing the choir at the University Methodist church and singing for many churches in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Shepard, the former Olive Nielsen '38, and a nine month's old daughter, Carol, reside with Mr. Shepard in southern California.

U. S. A. C. Alumni Association Elects New President And Executive Secretary

D. A. Skeen, '09, prominent Salt Lake City attorney, has been recalled for USAC Alumni President, it was announced by the Executive Committee after their Jan. 17 meeting in Salt Lake. Mr. Skeen, who served two terms previously, succeeds A. Russell Croft, '20, who resigned because of ill health.

Mr. Croft succeeded Mr. Skeen to the position in 1944 and held the office for two terms. He was deeply interested in the welfare of the college and saw the Alumni Association and its activities as a powerful influence in behalf of the USAC. He is Conservationist at the Intermountain Forest and Range Experiment Station in Ogden.

Croft Submits Resignation

In a letter to the Executive Committee, Mr. Croft submitted his resignation effective Jan. 15. "I regret it is necessary to take this step," Croft reported, "but for me to continue as president of the Association at this time would definitely handicap the organization at a time when it needs vigorous leadership." "I thank all of you sincerely for the very excellent cooperation I have received during the past three years," he concluded.

The committee accepted Mr. Croft's resignation with regret for losing such a valuable aid in the alumni work. They feel fortunate in being able to recall Mr. Skeen to the presidency. He will start his new term with a thorough knowledge of the problems of the Association for he has been closely connected with the activities of the Association in recent years. He has been a member of the Executive Committee since his termination of the presidency in 1944.

Under his former leadership, Mr. Skeen gave considerable time and thought to the place and role of Alumni Associations in behalf of their alma maters. He sees the alumni body as a powerful instrument in guiding an institution of learning and in furthering its work in the field.

Native of Utah

Mr. Skeen was born in Plain City, Utah, May 13, 1885. He graduated from the public schools of Weber County and from USAC in 1909 with a B. S. degree in Commerce. He graduated from the University of Chicago Law School with the degree of LL. B. Cum Laude. He also did general work in other schools of the University of Chicago during his residence in the Law School. He practiced law in Ogden for two years before coming to Salt Lake and has maintained a general practice of law at Salt Lake since 1913. Since 1922 he has been a member of the firm of Irwin, Skeen & Thurman.

Mr. Skeen has been recognized numerous times for his unselfish service and interest in social welfare

Jack Croft, graduate of 1924 and one of the best known members of the Alumni Association, has been appointed executive secretary of the organization. He succeeds H. Parley Kilburn who accepted appointment as Superintendent of the State Industrial School. Kilburn left the alumni position in December and Croft took over the office immediately and has been functioning since that time.

Since his graduation from the college, the new executive secretary has been moving from one good position to a better one. He entered the coaching business shortly after graduation and scored a great success at every institution with which he was associated, beginning in the high school ranks and finishing up in the position of head football coach at Montana State College in Bozeman, Montana. Immediately prior to the Montana assignment Croft was assistant coach at the college and made an excellent record here.

He finally left Montana to become Dean of Men at the college and he was functioning as Dean of Men when the war began. In this capacity he helped to organize college students into part-time labor battalions to be used at the Army Supply Depot in Ogden. These part-time labor groups were soon extended beyond the college to include high school students and many citizens from all over Cache Valley.

Leave of Absence Granted

The excellence of Croft's work in connection with this program resulted in the army requisitioning his full time service for the Ogden depot. In view of the importance of the work to be done, the college couldn't refuse the request and Jack himself felt the same pressure and so accepted a leave of absence from the college to carry on as general superintendent of the Quartermaster Supply Section at the Ogden depot. His work there was of the same high quality demonstrated previously and before long he was sent to trouble spots at depots in several parts of the country. He became an expert on depot organization, storage practices and operational procedure and was placed in charge of the planning procedure and training unit in addition to carrying on as civilian head of his division.

With the end of the war and the decline of the importance of the depots, the new secretary felt that it would be legitimate to return to college work and this happened to coincide with Parley Kilburn's resignation. The officers of the Alumni Association consider themselves particularly fortunate that the former Dean of Men become available just when the need developed.

Secretary Post Important

It is generally recognized that part of the public status of the Alumni Association is dependent on the quality of the executive secretary and it is quite evident from the appointment of Croft that the officers of the association are determined to maintain a very high level of character and ability in the office. Parley Kilburn had made an excellent record as secretary and brought a great deal to the association and the officers expect that they are moving along the same progressive line with the appointment of Croft.

In commenting about the reasons for his acceptance of the position, the new secretary said, "I was impressed that Parley Kilburn had done a great deal for the Alumni Association. It seemed to me that it was moving forward, gaining in significance and in its ability to be of service to members and to the Institution. Consequently the position seemed to offer a real challenge to me and I felt I could certainly push myself to the limit of my ability and still find plenty to be done. After a month of work I find more than ever that the opportunities for constructive work by both the association and anyone in this position are tremendous."

work and legislation. He has served as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Utah State Training School of the feeble-minded, which he was instrumental in founding. He was also instrumental in the establishing of the Salt Lake Community Chest, the Central Council of Social Agencies of Salt Lake, and the Utah Society for Mental Hygiene. Mr. Skeen was one of the organizers of the Lion's Club in Utah and Idaho.

825 Veterans of World War II Now Aggies

Majority Registered Under G. I. Bill of Rights

Former infantry sergeants from the jungles of New Guinea, air corps bombardiers who flew the skies over Europe, yes, even an army nurse recently returned from France—they are all banded together now—they are Aggies, attending college on either the G. I. Bill of Rights or the Rehabilitation program.

With a total numbering 825 at the beginning of the winter quarter, these returning veterans of World War II make up 40% of USAC's student body. Eight of these veterans are women. One half of this number are former Aggies, returned once more to the familiar campus. Some are doing post graduate work for master degrees or taking refresher courses. Some have entered school while still on terminal leave from the armed forces. They are still in uniform.

Many of these veterans are married and have brought their wives and families with them. Some have found living accommodations in Logan. Others are living in trailers purchased by the college and located just east of the campus. These former G. I. trailers, 100 in number, are self-liquidating and are operated at cost.

Wives Attend School Too

Wives of many of the veterans attend school with their husbands, work, or stay at home to care for their children, who range from several weeks up to 17 years. Several of these wives are returning veterans themselves, attending school on their own G. I. rights.

Single veterans are finding accommodations in fraternity houses, private homes, or in the college field house where 40 men are housed in the north end.

The majority of the veterans are from Utah and southern Idaho. Fifteen are here from California. Students also came from Wyoming, Oregon, Minnesota, Massachusetts, and New York. Some are men who were stationed at USAC for the army and navy training programs during the war years and have thought it worthwhile to return.

Under a student guidance program, these returning veterans are welcomed to USAC. Evan B. Murray, coordinator for the G. I. program, and Dr. Arden N. Frandsen, coordinator for the rehabilitation program, have been designated by the college to work in connection with the Veterans Administration. O. O. Jorgensen, veterans training officer, and G. L. Barron, assistant rehabilitation officer, head a staff of five government employees assigned to work on the campus.

Majority Entitled to Maximum

Nearly all of the students are enrolled under the G. I. Bill for educational benefits. This entitles them to 12 months of college for each corresponding 12 months served in the armed forces. The majority have served 3 or more years with the armed forces and are entitled to receive the maximum of 4 years schooling.

Sixty of the students are veterans with service-connected disabilities and need special rehabilitation. These students are assigned to Dr. Frand-sen and Mr. Barron and go through a period of advisement. They help the veteran in planning a course of study to meet his own specific needs and arrange whatever tests the student may desire to assist him in the choice of an occupation, and to determine the value of his past experience in terms of college credit.

Many of these rehabilitation veterans have chosen the schools of engineering and industries and trades. Some are training at the college and others work directly on a job, or they may do both. After the required training, the Veterans Administration will aid these veterans in obtaining employment suitable to their skills.

Non-High School Grads Study

Six students have successfully passed the examination for non-high school graduates. These examinations were administered by Dr. Frandsen to students who left high school to enter the armed forces and received specific training courses or to students who had studied alone along a desired course of study.

Mr. Murray, college coordinator, works directly with the veteran under the G. I. Bill educational benefits. It is his duty to see that they are properly registered in order to receive their total benefits. These veterans are registered in nearly all of USAC's broad and diverse curriculum.

Any alumni who knows of veterans in their community who wish to return to USAC are urged by Mr. Murray to have these veterans contact the college. "It is not necessary for them to contact their local Veterans Administration before registering", Murray said. "Also a mistaken idea", he said, "is that a veteran must register at the beginning of the quarter or wait until the next quarter. This is wrong. Veterans may enroll at any time".

Officers of USAC are readily available to discuss with the veterans any of their problems. All instructors, professors and administrative officers of the college cooperate with the official counseling agency in assisting the ex-service student in his readjustment to civilian life. They have welcomed these new Aggies with a thorough understanding of their problems.

Enrollment Jumps 46% For Winter Quarter

Enrollment for the winter quarter at USAC increased 46% over the fall quarter, it was reported by W. H. Bell, Registrar. Aggies now total 2,033 over 1,392 for the fall term. Registration for the winter quarter was Jan. 2 and classes began the next day.

P. E. Majors Study In Graduate School

Intramurals at Utah State have always played a great part in rounding out the curriculum of the institution during the past years, but are being recognized more and more every day as body conditioning and muscle-building activities that this country is so badly in need of, according to reports ensuing from induction centers throughout the United States.

Professor H. B. "Hy" Hunsaker, who assumed the generalship of the P. E. department after the death of Professor J. R. Jensen in 1945, has been the big gun in the present development of the P. E. department.

Prof. Hunsaker has introduced a graduate study division this year at the college for P. E. grads under the supervision of the graduate school. This is drawing much favorable comment from all over the intermountain states. Enrolling graduates have the option of selecting their supporting fields from various other departments of the school. To date the following departments have been selected by students doing graduate work: Education, Physiology, Sociology, History, and English. The scope of this new graduate service is displayed in the fact that "Hy" has six students enrolled in undergraduate work that have transferred from other colleges and universities ranging from the University of Arizona to University of Idaho.

Largest Graduate School

Thirteen students, most of them returned GI's and attending Utah State under the present G I Bill of Rights, are now enrolled and are taking out their masters degree in the field of Physical Education. At the present time this is the largest graduate school in the history of Utah State. All these men have colorful careers, either in the armed services or as coaching experience. Seth Maughan, a graduate of Utah State in 1941 with a major in Physical Education, was ushered into the army in 1941 and participated in such battles as invasion of Africa, Anzio, Sicily, Salerno, and other campaigns up to Casino. While serving in the army, Seth has done much work along the physical conditioning lines.

Cluff Snow, another P. E. graduate in 1937, has seen both coaching and armed services work. After coaching five years in Idaho, Cluff entered the Navy in 1942 and trained at Norfolk, Va. before acting as head of physical training at Mercer Naval Unit.

Another Aggie graduate of 1941, Byrne C. Fernelius, has also returned to complete his studies towards a master degree. Byrne served under Prof. Hunsaker as an assistant in the department before entering the Navy as a chief specialist in athletics. Later he was commissioned an ensign and sent to the South Pacific as a skipper of a PT boat.

Lettermen Return To Squad

With the return of Coach H. B. "Bebe" Lee on November 19, 1945, varsity hoop aspirants were called together for their first practice, about two months later than other conference quintets convened.

Handicapped by such a late start, Coach Lee was forced with the immediate problem of reducing his squad to a workable number. After five practices, the squad was cut to 20 men and Lee's Stanford style of play inaugurated.

Coach Lee's first worry came with the lack of height and experienced players, especially so when compared to other Big Seven teams. Only returning lettermen to report were Earl "Hap" Holmstead, sharp-shooting forward last season, and Garth Bel-liston and Udell Wankier, reserve forwards during the war years. All three were holding down starting positions until the winter quarter registration. Other fall quarter candidates were Keith Whitesides, Jay Harris, and Howard Morgan, all from Layton. Vernon Barney, John Putnik, Mickey Hughes, Pat Condie, and Carvell Jackson reported after finishing the 1945 football campaign. Jack Sorensen, a diminutive speedster from Logan who just completed a two year stretch in the Army Air Corps is showing up very well at one guard post.

Hoffman and Maughan Return

Winter quarter registration brought great joy to the Aggie court squad

when a couple of all-conference lettermen arrived. Vern Hoffman, all-conference center, and Ralph Maughan, all-conference guard, both serving on the 1943 team, checked out suits along with a host of other likely prospects. Both Hoffman and Maughan just secured their releases from the armed services and will take some time to get back into the swing of the Casaba sport.

Five other men also reported and are shaping up well into Coach Lee's style of play. A couple of Idaho vets, Evan Sorensen and Lee Jorgensen, although small, are whirlwinds on offense and both hit the hoop consistently. Ev is a former Aggie letterman and Lee is a previous all-stater.

More Height Added

A little more height was added to the squad when Duane Hobbs, 6' 4" center, C. A. "Chessy" Chesbro, 6' 1" forward, and Frank "Red" Gilmore, 6' 3" forward all reported to Coach Lee. Hobbs comes from Preston, Idaho, Chesbro hails from Weaten, Ill., and played for Iowa Pre-flight. Red Gilmore did his preping at Washington high school in Los Angeles and played two years of service basketball.

Utah State has a fair average of pre-season games to their credit, four won and two lost, one of these being to the highly touted University of Idaho quint. Probably the most impressive win was over Montana University.

Aggies Enter Team In Intercollegiate Skiing

Intercollegiate skiing has reached the USAC campus. This announcement, made by the Rocky Mountain Big Seven Athletic Conference, was hailed with enthusiasm by Aggie skiers who are enjoying their 25th season since skiing was inaugurated in 1921 on the campus.

A ski team has been organized to compete with other collegiate teams in the Rocky Mountain area. Utah State skiers through the years have long dreamed of this opportunity and have worked diligently to make it possible.

Skiers on the campus were organized in 1921 under the direction of George "Doc" Nelson, veteran Aggie trainer and wrestling coach, and Jack Croft, former Dean of Men and now Alumni Secretary at the hill-top school. Skiing was being done some years before this time by a few of the winter sports enthusiasts but was not recognized as a real winter sport in Cache Valley until 1921.

From all available reports, "Doc" Nelson was the first man to own a pair of boughten skis in the valley. In 1916 George ordered his skis through a sporting goods store in Preston, Idaho. They came from an eastern concern. At that time there were no ski bindings which are now standard equipment on a pair of skis but just the single strap into which the toes were thrust. However, it wasn't long until some makeshift leather bindings were rigged up by some of the pioneer skiers and these devices were regarded with astonishment by fellow skiers. At this time, "Doc" was living at Providence and skied to and from school every day during the hard winters.

First Carnival Successful

The first Winter Carnival, annual sports joust for Aggie students, was held on the Providence bench and proved an outstanding success. Nelson and Croft were mainly responsible for this first carnival in which such individuals as "Stubby" Peterson, former sports enthusiast and operator of a sport shop later in Logan, Lou Ballif, Sid Nebeker, "Butch" Knowles, first all-conference football star for the Aggies, and Howard S. MacDonald, now president of Brigham Young university, participated. Assisting with the feminine angle of the carnival was Mrs. Wallace J. "Spic" Carlisle, the former Katherine Cooper, who was director of women's physical education at the college.

This gala affair was held on the Providence bench until the year 1934 when four Utah-Idaho Central railroad cars were chartered and the Aggie student body journeyed en masse to Mendon to spend a day on the white slopes of the towering Wellsville mountains. In 1936 the skiers chose the slopes in Beaver Basin and the next year moved to Contrasting the old with the new, "Doc" is shown with his 9' 6" skis and his old ski togs as compared to the modern skiers and equipment. the "Sinks" where the carnival was held until war-time restrictions and a limited student body caused the enthusiasts to restrict their activities to the glistening hills in front of "Old Main."

This year skiers will again return to the "Sinks" for their Winter Carnival which is scheduled for the first snow storm in February.

Outstanding Skiers

Utah State boasts of some outstanding skiers whose names have been written in the annals of skiing history in the state and intermountain regions. Some of these are Reid Olsen, Glen Jones, Mac Maeser, Ken Vanderhoff, Ted Nielson, Chet Dalglish, Jack Crookston, bomber pilot who was killed over Germany, George Nelson Jr., Ev Thorpe, and Loyal Seeholzer. The entire Seeholzer family from the oldest on down are eminent skiers and at least one can be found at the "Sinks" on any week end.

Recognition of skiing as a minor sport by the Rocky Mountain Conference is another step forward in the development of Competitive sports at USAC and the Aggies are going to make the most of it.

Although he graduated from Utah State in the school of English, Mel Manning, '42, has returned to take out his masters in the field of Physical Education. Mel was recently discharged from the Marine Corps after serving in the South Pacific as a Captain. Marv served in the Navy as a chief petty officer for three years as an instructor in physical conditioning.

Three other returning vets have enrolled in the graduate school and will complete work towards their master degrees. Wayne Steed, former student manager of Intramurals in 1940 before entering the army, Charlie Clark, football player of renown back in 1938-39-40 before graduating, have both enrolled. After he graduated in '40, Charlie coached at Thatcher high for one year and then returned to Utah State as freshman coach before entering the Navy Air Corps as a physical fitness instructor.

Earl "Hap" Holmstead and Vaughan Hall, both graduates last year, are helping Hy out in the intramural program this year. Hap has been registered at Utah State since 1941 and has made quite a name for himself in varsity basketball compe-

Alumni Lends Aid In Earthquake Studies

BY J. STEWART WILLIAMS
Professor of Geology

Many Aggie graduates in every county of the state, have agreed to help the Department of Geology at the College keep track of Utah's earthquakes, and are thereby making a valuable contribution to the geology of Utah, and to the science of earthquakes generally.

Over fifteen hundred persons scattered through most of the communities in the state have questionnaire postcards that can be mailed free to the College, describing what happens when a temblor visits their community. Every year observers in at least four or five areas have the opportunity to report. The work is sponsored by the Division of Geomagnetism and Seismology of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, with regional headquarters in San Francisco. Each of the eleven western states conducts the same program under the direction of a collaborator. The writer is collaborator for Utah.

But why bother keeping records of the few feeble earthquakes that seem to be all that nature can produce in Utah? Isn't it a waste of time and effort, a misplacement of emphasis, and an attempt to raise a bug-bear of possible disaster that is in no way justified? Utah has been settled for nearly one hundred years and its inhabitants have never suffered from any appreciable damage to their houses, roads, canals or other structures. There probably never has been a death in the state directly attributable to an earthquake. The truth of the latter statements must be admitted, but still the answer to each of the preceding questions is a definite "no."

Seismicity of Utah

Since the first year of settlement, as facilities for transmitting and recording information have improved, the annual earthquake records for Utah have steadily grown in accu-acy and completeness. From 1847 to December 31, 1941, 118 felt earthquakes are recorded. This is an average of 1.3 earthquakes per year. It is probable that five times that many occurred during this period, but were never noted in writing. The distribution of earthquakes by counties during this period is as follows:

Utah earthquakes by counties, 1847 to December 31, 1941.

County	Number of earthquakes
Box Elder	68
Sevier	16
Garfield	7
Salt Lake	6
Washington	6
Weber	4
Tooele	3
Utah	2
Cache	2
Rich	1
Sanpete	1
Iron	1
Davis	1
Total	118

From January 1, 1942 to the end of 1945, through the aid of volunteer observers, including the Aggie alumni, twenty eight earthquakes have been located. This is an average of seven each year. They have been distributed as shown below.

Utah earthquakes by counties
January 1, 1942 to December 31, 1945

County	Number of earthquakes
Iron	12
Sevier	5
Salt Lake	4
Box Elder	4
Sanpete	2
Washington	2
Juab	1
Total	28

Box Elder county leads the state in earthquakes, because of the faults in Hansel Valley, which have produced many shocks, including that of March 17, 1943, the greatest earthquake recorded for Utah. At that time the earth cracked open for several miles, and large saline springs started to flow in the mud flats at the north end of Great Salt Lake. Damage to chimneys, plaster and windows was considerable as far away as Logan, sixty miles to the east.

The other big Utah earthquake occurred October 1, 1921 at Elsinore, Sevier county. It had been preceded by another strong shock of nearly equal force on September 29. These temblors threw down many stone and adobe buildings, and severely damaged the Elsinore school house. Great clouds of dust arose over the country side, and many large boulders were shaken loose on the hill sides.

Where Utah's Earthquakes Originate

The valleys of western Utah are what geologists call graben valleys, that is, they are due to faults which mark their boundaries, the earth-block between the faults having dropped, the earth blocks outside the faults having risen. A list of the graben valleys of Utah would include all the principal ones west of a line from Bear Lake to Zion Canyon. Bear Lake, Cache, Sanpete, and Sevier Valleys are all typical graben valleys. Bear River, Salt Lake, Utah Juab Valleys are bounded on their east side by the great Wasatch fault, one of the major faults in the Rocky Mountain region.

Earthquakes are the result of movement along a fault or fracture in the rocks of the earth's crust. Rock pressure holds the fracture tightly sealed at depth, but as the forces in the earth strain the blocks adjacent the fault, one to rise, the other to sink, a point is reached where the forces overcome the friction in the fault zone, and a slip occurs. When movement greatly lessens friction, the elastic rebound of the rocks adjacent the fault causes the earth shock, with all of its interesting, and sometimes tragic, results.

Why Keep Track of Little Shocks?

Little earthquake shocks seem of no consequence because they do no damage and cause little or no excitement. Why should their point of origin be located as accurately as possible and recorded, together with any other information about them, for future reference? The answer is simple. Small shocks are the evidence of movement in a fault zone, though slight. Every movement indicates the presence of active earth forces, and also marks a redistribution of these forces in the fault zone. One small movement may relieve all the strain for the time being, or, in relieving one part, it may increase the strain in another part, thus marking the build-up to a release of strain that will be a major, damaging earthquake.

A complete record of all seismic activity in the state will enable us to rate the activity of the various faults, and therefore to predict, in a general way, the likelihood of earthquake activity in any area. At the same time we accumulate fundamental information about our part of the earth, which, like any other bits of scientific information, may be of entirely unexpected importance in some other part of the science.

The cooperation of the alumni of Utah State in this work is of major importance, and is greatly appreciated. Anyone who wants to participate should write to the Department of Geology for a supply of questionnaire cards.

APPOINTMENTS

The recent appointment of Parley Kilburn, former executive alumni secretary, as superintendent of the Utah Industrial School, was the first of a series of appointments which have placed Aggie graduates in the top positions at the industrial institution.

Leonard W. McDonald, former alumni secretary, was named business manager, Jesse L. Thompson, 1934 graduate, was appointed as assistant head of the industrial school, and Linden Castle and Junius Robins, both Utah State graduates, have accepted positions as staff members.

Mr. Kilburn who took up duties at the state institution early in December received his bachelor's degree at the college in 1931 with a major in history. He obtained his Master's degree at USAC in 1933 and did graduate study at the University of Michigan, Columbia and Stanford universities, recently completing all work for a doctorate degree in education.

Active in both community and religious affairs, Mr. Kilburn has held various positions from president of the Logan Teachers' association to first president of the Logan Junior Chamber of Commerce which he helped organize in 1936. He is former head of the Snow college education department and of the Snow college faculty association. Prior to accepting the new position he was secretary of the Utah State Alumni Association.

Mr. Thompson, coordinator of pupil personnel in the Logan city schools since 1936, was named assistant head of the industrial school in late December, succeeding O. H. Peterson. Mr. Thompson's assignment includes parole work and directorship of education.

Mr. McDonald, former editor of the Utah Farmer, who was appointed business manager at the state youth school served as alumni secretary for three years. He is a graduate of Utah State, receiving a BS degree in economics in 1939.

Both Mr. Castle and Mr. Linden are graduates of USAC, Mr. Castle graduating in 1939, and Mr. Robins in 1943. Mr. Castle is a former instructor at the USAC training school and Mr. Robins was recently discharged from the marine corps.

W. Durrell (Quig) Nielsen, graduate of Utah State 1933, recently assumed duties as editor of the Utah Farmer after being discharged from the United States army.

Quig succeeds Leonard W. McDonald, Aggie graduate, who resigned to accept a position as business manager of the Utah Industrial School.

Prior to his entrance into the armed services where he was a captain, Quig was employed in the USAC department of public relations where he handled all press releases and athletic publicity. He also served as sports representative for state papers.

His military science was spent with the Coast Artillery Corps, the athletic section of Special Services, and the Army Education Branch. With the latter unit, stationed at the Pentagon in Washington, D. C., he served as liaison officer between the Army Education Branch and the U. S. Department of Agriculture and other government agencies.

Mrs. Nielsen, the former LaVone Bott of Brigham City, and the couple's two children will make their home in Salt Lake City.

at Utah State. Vaughan has five years coaching experience at McCammon, Idaho and he also served as an instructor for half days at Logan high last year.

The other two enrollees are well known throughout the state for their work in the physical education fields. Glen Worthington has been with Logan high as a physical education instructor and served as basketball coach during Perry Wilson's absence. Helena B. Case, former classmate of Worthington's, both graduates of 1929, rounds out the physical education graduate school. Mrs. Case has been director of physical education at Central Junior high school in Ogden for a number of years.

Hy's famed Intramurals that are drawing such praise from sports enthusiasts around is headed by Vaughan Hall. Assisting Hall are student managers Garth Belliston and Udell Wankier. Senior manager is John Putnik, and Nephi Schwab, Art Johnson, and Evan Sorensen are junior managers, as Jack Sorensen and Bob Rush are serving as sophomore managers.

Three freshmen managers have been appointed lately. They are Norman Smith, Lyle Call and Jack Baker. Because of the high registration rate of male students winter quarter, a new league was organized to supplement the already outstanding fraternity league.

So you'll see better

Nature designed your eyes for seeing by daylight. But the average person spends most of his waking hours under artificial light.

To develop better artificial light—for all living and working conditions—has been a continuous project of G-E engineers and research scientists. They have even developed a whole new Science of Seeing.

The pictures on this page illustrate a few ways in which G. E. is helping you see the day-by-day and night-to-night things more easily. General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Powdered Light. This luminous powder that you see is a phosphor. Coating the inside of every G-E fluorescent lamp, it transforms invisible rays into soft, cool light. Recently General Electric developed a remarkable new phosphor which will be used in a new fluorescent sun lamp to provide healthful summer sunshine all year round, economically and efficiently. And speaking of economy, G-E lamp research has reduced the cost of a 60-watt G-E bulb by 75% since 1923. Another way in which General Electric helps to bring More Goods to More People at Less Cost.

The tiny 7-watt G-E bulb in this night light makes darkened halls safely navigable for sleepy people. It's especially useful in homes with small children. And the cost of electric current has been brought so low that, at average residential rates, this little lamp will burn for four 8-hour nights for only a penny or so!

What's the best light for reading? Above is one of many testing devices in the G-E Lighting Research Laboratories. The amount of light on the page and the amount of general illumination inside the sphere are varied to determine best seeing conditions.

You'll soon see important events as they happen—by improved television with a bigger screen and clearer reception. Back in 1928 a G-E engineer, Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, gave the first public television demonstration. And for more than five years now, G. E. has been telecasting regular programs from its own station, WRGB.

The best investment in the world is in your country's future
